Communist troops were reported hammering Woosung from two sides, in an effort to seal off the Nationalists' escape route.

(Reuters reported, without con-

Small Arms Fire

Machine-gun and small arms fire crackled across a two square mile area along Soochow Creek, which divides the northern and southern halves of Shanghai. The occasional crump of a Communist mortar was heard, but for the most part both sides observed a "gentle-man's agreement" to spare the city six million excessive damage. Congress might well keep its own fingers crossed until it knows whether, if it does send arms to France, they will fall into the hands of the commies or of Gen. De Gaulle's fascistic following.—

Why Do We Hurry So?

GUATEMALA CITY, Guatemala, May 26 .- It is always easy to GUATEMALA CITY, Guatemala, May 26.—It is always easy to identify an American in a foreign country, particularly in a country such as this where the pace of life has much in common with the slow motion movie and the snails. The American tourists here are a threat to themselves as well as to the Guatemalans. We tear around just as if we were members of a volunteer fire department and had just heard the clang of the bell. The Guatemalans look at us as if we were plain crazy, and I am beginning to believe that they have something there.

Already today I have had no fewer than a dozen severe collisions with Americans who were rushing in one direction while I was rushing in another. Honestly, you can stand on a street corner in Guatemala and hear the heartbeats of the Americans, and the sound of their blood pressures rising, as they gallop from one place

Why Do We Hurry So?

Why do we hurry so? That one I can't answer. We Americans pick a place to visit because it is quiet and leisurely and offers a change from the hustle and bustle and drive of our own country, and then proceed to travel at a pace which would exhaust a jet plane.

This reminds me of an experience I once had in Paris. I crossed on the boat with an elderly gentleman who told me that he was an avid sightseer, and never missed a thing in any country he visited. I met him a few weeks later in the Place Vendome, and he was beaming all over. With great pride in his voice he told me that he had just finished going through the Louvre. "I made a trip through the whole shebang in an hour," he said, "and I could have made it in fifty minutes if the floors hadn't been so confounded slippery."

That's the American tourist all over. We have to see everything, even if we return home with only a muddled, blurred memory of the sights we have seen.

Here in the restaurants, where the food is superbly cooked and erved, you will see Guatemalans taking two hours over a meal, enjoying each course to the fullest, and sipping the proper wines

Not So With Us Americans

We tear into the dining room, ask for what is ready and can be served in a hurry, and get to eating. I timed a fellow American the other day, and the time, from the moment he entered the dining room until he gave his mouth a final going over with the napkin, was just fifteen minutes. Then he swept out of the room, grabbed a taxi, called "hurry, hurry" to the driver as if he was a surgeon rushing to an emergency call, and beat it to visit some cathedrals. The fact that the cathedrals have been around for centuries, and show no signs of running away, didn't slow down the American. He went just as fast as if he were late for a train.

This same wild speed is to be seen in all the shops and market places. The local inhabitants take their time in looking over the wares, and then spend more of their time bargaining with the merchants. Not so the good ol' U. S. A. traveller. He pants into a store, grabs something, pays the first price (which is always the setting part the selling price) and shoots have into his weiting term. Involved in the question of a Mexican loan are all the conflicting forces that make Washington today a place of weary stalemate.

At the same time they would get asking, not the selling price, and shoots back into his waiting taxing to shoot off somewhere else.

When I get around to it. I am notice.

U. S. Shoulders Burden The answer is likely to be, "lit-tle if anything." The United States, as usual, will be expected to shoulder the whole financial burden. Admitting that the security of Europe against Communist aggression is of importance to our own security, it would seem to be even more important to the European nations themselves. If they are genuinely concerned about their defense, it would seem that they should be willing to bear a fair share of the cost of armament. Many of the signatory nations have reached a sound financial footing since the end of the war; they are perfectly able to contribute their own funds for their own protection. Yet nobody in Washington has suggested such contributions and the assumption here, as well as in Europe, appears to be that Uncle Sam will follow precedent and assume the whole cost

According to the terms of the Alliance, the United States is morally bound to render active military aid for the defense of any signatory subject to aggressive action. This means that we will have to send our own forces to Europe or "renege" on our pledges. Thus, in addition to bearing the major share of the fighting, we would singlehandedly finance the militar equipment of the individual mem member the shenanigans of Montague Glass' greatest creations Potash and Perlmutter? These two hot-tempered and argumentative partners called one another every name under the sun, but if an outsider attacked, they were as united and indivisible as Park and Tilford or Haig and Haig!

One of Potash's rages was provoked by a high-salaried salesman who was too lazy to cover his accounts properly. "Look at you sitting here twaddling your thumbs," screamed Potash. "Why aren't you out selling?" "Listen. Mr. Potash," the salesman assured him. "If I could sell like you think I should, I'd be in business for myself!"

There came a day when Potash and Perlmutter invested in a motion picture company, and Perlmutter hired a slinky siren of the then-popular Theda Bara-Pola Negri type. "How much you pay-ing her?" demanded Potash sus-piciously. "Seven hundred a week," admitted Perlmutter. "Robbery," cried Potash. "You've gone erazy." "Calm yourself," said Perlmutter. "You dont' seem to understand that this girl is a Kipling vampire." "For $700 a week," decreed Potash, "she should Kipple for somebody else."

Ask Revocation Of Coal Contract

Allege Defendant Made Misrepresentations In Securing Leases For Coal Stripping

Charging that misrepresentations were made in securing the lease, Philip L. and Edna A. Mc-Quiston have asked the court to revoke a lease they gave to Sylvester Matuszewski.

Some months ago the plaintiffs leased to the defendant about 100 acres of land in Wayne township from which the coal was to be stripped. At the time, the plaintiffs allege, Mr. Matuszewski held out that he represented the Bowie Coal company of Grove City. The plaintiffs told Judge W

Indications Are That Coming Round-Up Will Be Most Successful

Things are poppin' around the Greater New Castle Association headquarters. And not vest buttons either.

The Round-Up of the association starts Wednesday, June 1, and the last minute tasks of checking in cowhands, wranglers and ropers has the office turned inside out. Rarin' To Go

A meeting of the ranch crew as held Wednesday night in the GNCA offices with Ranch Forc-man James A. Rugh passing out last minute instructions. Foreman Orville Potter, William Milsom Jack Preston had their crews on hand and today the cowhands are just waiting for the start of the round, rarin' to go.

The pre-roundup dinner of the GNCA will be held in the Cathedral Tuesday night, May 31, with the noted James R. Gheen as the speaker. Gheen has been in Castle before and the fact that he was invited back would be some idea of how good local people think he is.

Just what the crowd will be is not certain yet but it will be in excess of 400. In addition to Mr. Gheen's address there will be a clever piece of entertaining with a western motif.

Comes the dinner on May 31 and then the Round-Up on June 1, 2 and 3. The idea is to band more people together in the GNCA, the better to make possible a program of civic improvement and expansion in New Castle.

The success of the GNCA is circumscribed by the number of peo-ple who belong. The bigger the membership the better the job.

Most Industrial Favorites Show Upward Tendencies During Day

NEW YORK, May 26-(INS)-The stock market extended its rallying movement in early dealings today. Leading issues advanced fractionally but with an extended week-end holiday in the offing, dealings were on a limited scale. Most industrial favorites were in the plus column. They included U. S. Steel, General Motors, General Electric, and Montgomery Rail shares pointed higher. Delaware and Hudson, Chesapeake and Ohio, Atchison, Pennsylvania and Southern Railway were fractionally improved. Utilities were featured by an opening transaction of 19,000 shares in Commonwealth and Southern at 37/8, unchanged from its previous close. The bond market moved irregularly higher, Jersey Central Railroad issues were in demand. Commodities did little. Corn eased 38, wheat was unchanged and cotton gained 20 cents a bale.

—Guerino Carlucetti, formerly of Swatara Station, began a stay in Dauphin county jail to await trial in the "rosebush" murders of 14 years ago.

Carlucetti was committed to Farview state hospital July 9, 1935, after he was charged with killing two neighbors while planting rosebushes in his Swatara Station garden. Charges of felonious assault on two other persons also are pending against Carlucetti.

Authorities ordered him to stand trial after hospital officials declared him mentally capable of defending himself.

District Attorney Carl B. Shelley said the trials would begin sometime next fall.

Frank Wagner the veteran moundsman racked up his fourth win for the Nats, 4 to 1, in the seven-inning opener, just missing his second straight shutout as John McCullough the Vandies second-sacker belted one out of the park in the top half of the seventh with two away.
